Care and maintenance

The durability of your furniture depends on weather conditions and usage. To preserve it, store it in a dry, well-ventilated area during winter, and protect it from scratches and impacts.

After exposure to rain or humidity, rinse the furniture with clean water (preferably at the end of the season rather than after each use) to remove dirt and limescale deposits, then dry thoroughly with a soft cloth. Avoid leaving water standing on surfaces: if possible, slightly tilt the furniture to allow water to drain and prevent marks or oxidation.

Avoid placing very hot objects directly on the surface, as this may damage the cataphoresis treatment of the steel and alter the finish. The use of protective covers is not recommended, as moisture can become trapped between the cover and the furniture, accelerating material ageing.

Regular maintenance and these simple precautions will help extend the beauty and durability of your outdoor furniture, even when used outdoors.
